Subject: questions for Vice President Biden and Hunter Biden - Popular Mechanics

Hi Meghan,

Our questions for the Vice President and Hunter are attached. I'm so sorry I couldn't get them to you first thing this morning. My editor-in-chief and I spent all day working on them, making sure we got them absolutely right. We just consider this such a huge honor and responsibility. We don't take it lightly. We'd love for the two of them to be as detailed in their responses as possible. And if these questions spark any other stories or opinions about fatherhood they'd like to share, they should absolutely feel free to share those, too-any and all digressions are welcome. I need their responses by Friday, April 1 at the absolute latest. Let me know if you have any questions or need anything else from this end. And please, please express to both of them our sincerest gratitude.

Best,

Sean

Subject: Tax docs signing

Importance: High

Hi folks,

It's that time of year again... The WW has determined that, consistent with prior years, we will release the tax returns on the last Friday before they're due: Friday, April 15th.

As for signing, we need 15 minutes on each of their calendars no later than Wednesday, April 13th, please. That will give us time to do the final preparations in order to release them. VP/JTB do not need to be together in order to sign (last year they were not).

The tax returns are basically ready, and we are working on the other docs that go with them (Q&A, blog post, etc.). But so everyone knows, this year's returns are very similar to the past couple of years.

Please don't hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Thanks.

Great - thanks, Meghan. Hunter had asked me to reach out to you about this so I am glad Alex connected us.

I'll show Hunter the questions to get him thinking about them. Let us know what you are thinking as far as timing. On the photo shoot, not sure if David is doing it or the magazine is sending someone but DE could be an option too - Hunter should be up there a bunch in the coming weeks.

Hi Meghan,

Our questions for the Vice President and Hunter are attached. I'm so sorry I couldn't get them to you first thing this morning. My editor-in-chief and I spent all day working on them, making sure we got them absolutely right. We just consider this such a huge honor and responsibility. We don't take it lightly. We'd love for the two of them to be as detailed in their responses as possible. And if these questions spark any other stories or opinions about fatherhood they'd like to share, they should absolutely feel free to share those, too-any and all digressions are welcome. I need their responses by Friday, April 1 at the absolute latest. Let me know if you have any questions or need anything else from this end. And please, please express to both of them our sincerest gratitude.

Best,

Sean

Hunter said he thought NAVOBS would be better and easier for the photo shoot - but deferred to you guys. Sometime in the afternoon would be ideal on an afternoon that works with his Dad's schedule.

It would be a team from Popular Mechanics doing the photo shoot (just for a few minutes). Let me know if Hunter has a preference on where it is shot.

To give a quick sense of what I'd like to discuss, for once you're ready — when we launch his Facebook page tomorrow, we'll want to include a set of (largely professional) life "milestones" in his timeline.

If possible, we'd love photos to accompany each ones. Obviously Lienemann and co can help with any photos taken over the course of the Administration, but before that, it gets a bit trickier. Wanted to pick your brain on the best sources for photos for other, pre-White House life events. List below of the ones we'd like to include.

Let me know when you're free to talk, and thanks!

Hunter said he thought NAVOBS would be better and easier for the photo shoot - but deferred to you guys. Sometime in the afternoon would be ideal on an afternoon that works with his Dad's schedule.

It would be a team from Popular Mechanics doing the photo shoot (just for a few minutes). Let me know if Hunter has a preference on where it is shot.

Great - thanks, Meghan. Hunter had asked me to reach out to you about this so I am glad Alex connected us.

I'll show Hunter the questions to get him thinking about them. Let us know what you are thinking as far as timing. On the photo shoot, not sure if David is doing it or the magazine is sending someone but DE could be an option too - Hunter should be up there a bunch in the coming weeks

Hi Meghan,

Our questions for the Vice President and Hunter are attached. I'm so sorry I couldn't get them to you first thing this morning. My editor-in-chief and I spent all day working on them, making sure we got them absolutely right. We just consider this such a huge honor and responsibility. We don't take it lightly. We'd love for the two of them to be as detailed in their responses as possible. And if these questions spark any other stories or opinions about fatherhood they'd like to share, they should absolutely feel free to share those, too-any and all digressions are welcome. I need their responses by Friday, April 1 at the absolute latest. Let me know if you have any questions or need anything else from this end. And please, please express to both of them our sincerest gratitude.

Best,

Sean

Hunter said he thought NAVOBS would be better and easier for the photo shoot - but deferred to you guys. Sometime in the afternoon would be ideal on an afternoon that works with his Dad's schedule.

It would be a team from Popular Mechanics doing the photo shoot (just for a few minutes). Let me know if Hunter has a preference on where it is shot.

Great - thanks, Meghan. Hunter had asked me to reach out to you about this so I am glad Alex connected us.

I'll show Hunter the questions to get him thinking about them. Let us know what you are thinking as far as timing. On the photo shoot, not sure if David is doing it or the magazine is sending someone but DE could be an option too - Hunter should be up there a bunch in the coming weeks.

Hey - quick random question. What's the best way to get in touch with Hunter? VP agreed to do this Q&A for Popular Mechanics - ideally, we'd need responses from Hunter and a time that he and VP can do a photo for magazine cover.

Thanks!

Hi Meghan,

Our questions for the Vice President and Hunter are attached. I'm so sorry I couldn't get them to you first thing this morning. My editor-in-chief and I spent all day working on them, making sure we got them absolutely right. We just consider this such a huge honor and responsibility. We don't take it lightly. We'd love for the two of them to be as detailed in their responses as possible. And if these questions spark any other stories or opinions about fatherhood they'd like to share, they should absolutely feel free to share those, too-any and all digressions are welcome. I need their responses by Friday, April 1 at the absolute latest. Let me know if you have any questions or need anything else from this end. And please, please express to both of them our sincerest gratitude.

Best,

Sean

Subject: Preview of OGE 278 report for VP for OGE

Gents,

I got a call from Chris Swarts over at OGE. He said that in the past, OGE has taken a look at the VP's OGE 278 report in draft form before we send it to them for final certification. Doing so might help them know what it is they're dealing with before they get the final version, and it would allow them to support our office in our attempt to certify the report.

Do we want to take advantage of this offer this year? Chris said that we have done this in the past, by emailing a draft copy of the form.

Also, do we know a status of the report?

Regards,
Dave

Also, copying Joan in our office in case there are last minute changes.

Subject: Re: questions for Vice President Biden and Hunter Biden - Popular Mechanics

Hunter said he thought NAVOBS would be better and easier for the photo shoot - but deferred to you guys. Sometime in the afternoon would be ideal on an afternoon that works with his Dad's schedule.

It would be a team from Popular Mechanics doing the photo shoot (just for a few minutes). Let me know if Hunter has a preference on where it is shot.

Great - thanks, Meghan. Hunter had asked me to reach out to you about this so I am glad Alex connected us.

I'll show Hunter the questions to get him thinking about them. Let us know what you are thinking as far as timing. On the photo shoot, not sure if David is doing it or the magazine is sending someone but DE could be an option too - Hunter should be up there a bunch in the coming weeks.

Hey - quick random question. What's the best way to get in touch with Hunter? VP agreed to do this Q&A for Popular Mechanics - ideally, we'd need responses from Hunter and a time that he and VP can do a photo for magazine cover.

Thanks!
Meghan

Subject: questions for Vice President Biden and Hunter Biden - Popular Mechanics

Hi Meghan,

Our questions for the Vice President and Hunter are attached. I'm so sorry I couldn't get them to you first thing this morning. My editor-in-chief and I spent all day working on them, making sure we got them absolutely right. We just consider this such a huge honor and responsibility. We don't take it lightly. We'd love for the two of them to be as detailed in their responses as possible. And if these questions spark any other stories or opinions about fatherhood they'd like to share, they should absolutely feel free to share those, too-any and all digressions are welcome. I need their responses by Friday, April 1 at the absolute latest. Let me know if you have any questions or need anything else from this end. And please, please express to both of them our sincerest gratitude.

Best,
Sean

To give a quick sense of what I'd like to discuss, for once you're ready — when we launch his Facebook page tomorrow, we'll want to include a set of (largely professional) life "milestones" in his timeline.

If possible, we'd love photos to accompany each ones. Obviously Lienemann and co can help with any photos taken over the course of the Administration, but before that, it gets a bit trickier. Wanted to pick your brain on the best sources for photos for other, pre-White House life events. List below of the ones we'd like to include.

Let me know when you're free to talk, and thanks!

THE WHITE HOUSE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
January 22, 2015

Statement by the Vice President on the Passing of Wendell Ford

Jill and I were very sorry to hear of the passing of Senator Wendell Ford.

He was one of the most effective legislative leaders I've ever worked with throughout my entire career. His philosophy was summed up when he said, "why make a speech when you can sit down with your colleagues and work something out?"

He always took care of Kentucky, but never lost sight of the fact that he represented all of America.

During Wendell's time in the Senate, he helped bring greater transparency to government, greater safety to the airlines, and greater access to the polls.

It was thanks to his leadership as Whip that the Violence Against Women Act passed in 1994 as part of the Biden Crime Bill, changing the lives of so many women and men in this country and around the world.

On a personal note, Senator Ford has been an important part of our family for a long time. He gave Sara Jones Biden, from Owensboro, Kentucky, her first job on the Hill when she graduated from Duke Law School, and that's how she met my brother Jimmy.

Last May, Jill had the honor of speaking at Owensboro Community College in Wendell's hometown, and it was clear that his legacy will long outlive him in Owensboro, in Kentucky, and across the United States.

Wendell was an extremely effective senator and a great personal friend whose advice I sought long after he had left the Senate. I will miss him.

Our thoughts are with Jean, Steve, and Shirley during this difficult time. He was a good man.

Kentucky Democratic icon Wendell Ford dead at age 90

BY JACK BRAMMER

jbrammer@herald-leader.com January 22, 2015

Updated 18 minutes ago

Wendell Ford, the patriarch of Kentucky Democratic politics in the latter part of the 20th Century, died Thursday morning in his hometown of Owensboro. He was 90.

Mr. Ford served 24 years in the U.S. Senate and was governor from 1971 to 1974. He was the first person in Kentucky history to be elected lieutenant governor, governor and U.S. senator.

A heavy smoker and strong defender of the tobacco industry for most of his political life, Mr. Ford announced in July that he was undergoing chemotherapy treatments for lung cancer. He said he was going to follow his doctors' orders "and leave the rest with the good Lord."

He expressed disappointment that he was too ill to campaign for a number of state and local Democratic candidates on the November ballot, including U.S. Senate candidate Alison Lundergan Grimes in her bid to oust Republican incumbent Mitch McConnell.

Since his retirement in 1999, Mr. Ford frequently advised Democratic politicians and stumped on the campaign trail for them.

He was the longest-serving senator in Kentucky's history at the time of his retirement, a mark that was surpassed by McConnell in 2009.

At the time, McConnell called Mr. Ford one of the great U.S. senators in Kentucky's history.

Even as Mr. Ford attained high office, McConnell said, "he never forgot the lessons he learned working alongside his parents on the farm."

"Kentuckians respected him for proving that a country boy could walk the corridors of power, dine with kings and presidents, and still come back to Yellow Creek and be right at home," McConnell said.

Mr. Ford's political career spanned several decades. He served four terms in the U.S. Senate, where he was first elected in November 1974. He was the Senate Democratic whip from 1991 to his retirement.

Mr. Ford's leadership in the U.S. Senate paid off for the state. He secured much money for building projects and sometimes held up national legislation to cut a better deal for Kentucky.

In the 1980s, unemployed Kentuckians ended up with 13 weeks of benefits, rather than six, after Ford held out for more.

Mr. Ford was governor of Kentucky from Dec. 7, 1971, to Dec. 28, 1974.

His overhaul of state agencies was the hallmark of his tenure as governor, said Kentucky's late historian laureate, Thomas D. Clark.

Kentucky Democratic Party chairman Dan Logsdon said Mr. Ford "has been everything to us. He always fought for Kentucky interests. He never backed down on that."

Logsdon said Ford was "a wonderful stump speaker. He would always give the best speech at political events."

The Kentucky Democratic Party headquarters off Interstate 64 in Frankfort bears Mr. Ford's name.

Cutting deals

As a politician, Mr. Ford was known more for making deals than authoring legislation. Still, he helped shape several pieces of historic legislation, such as the Family and Medical Leave Act, National Energy Security Act of 1992, Age Discrimination Act Amendments of 1986, Tobacco Reform Act of 1985 and the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act of 1977.

He also was a key player in passing the 1993 motor-voter law, which allows people to register to vote when they get their driver's license.

His reputation was one of an effective, shrewd politician who, despite an easy smile and a quick, folksy wit, played hardball behind the scenes.

His intense support for home-state interests — coal, tobacco and alcohol — at times incurred the wrath of health and consumer advocates. He fought hard against warning labels on cigarette packs and alcoholic beverages and was often photographed with an ever-present cigarette hanging from the corner of his mouth.

But Mr. Ford was beloved by most of his fellow Kentuckians.

"Ford was a champion of Kentucky's so-called sin products — tobacco, whiskey, coal," veteran journalist Al Smith said. "He was always proud to be from Kentucky and never forgot where he came from."

Early years

Mr. Ford was born Sept. 8, 1924, in Owensboro. His father, Ernest, was a state senator and an ally of Kentucky Gov. Earle C. Clements.

Mr. Ford graduated from Daviess County High School in 1942. He attended the University of Kentucky for a semester, then returned to work on the family farm. He married Ruby Jean Neel of Daviess County on Sept. 19, 1943. The couple had two children, Steven and Shirley.

After serving in the Army from 1944 to 1946, Mr. Ford graduated from the Maryland School of Insurance and entered the insurance business with his father.

But Mr. Ford didn't set out to follow his father into public office.

"One of the things I had been turned off about politics by was watching my Dad, and how many people were coming in asking for things, pushing for things," Mr. Ford said in 1999.

Mr. Ford didn't become interested in politics until he was the national president of the Jaycees in 1956-57.

He became youth chairman of Bert Combs' gubernatorial campaign and then an aide to Gov. Combs, from 1959 to 1961. He beat his former boss in the 1971 Democratic primary for governor.

Mr. Ford always said he ran every race scared and as if it were his last.

His first two were cliffhangers. In 1965, he won a state Senate seat by a mere 305 votes. Two years later, he was barely elected lieutenant governor, winning by 13,652 votes.

At that time, lieutenant governors ran independently of the governor. Mr. Ford was elected lieutenant governor on a split ticket with Republican Louie B. Nunn.

They often were at loggerheads.

Mr. Ford unsuccessfully opposed Nunn's request to the legislature to increase the state sales tax in 1968 from 3 percent to 5 percent.

As governor, Mr. Ford had such a tight control over the Democrat-dominated legislature that nearly all of his programs were enacted.

During his tenure the five percent sales tax on food was removed, state government was reorganized and Kentucky's first coal severance tax was levied.

Mr. Ford also asked for a two-cent per gallon increase in the gasoline tax, a corporate tax increase and a major increase in funding for education. He requested money for the newest higher education institutions, the University of Louisville and Northern Kentucky State College, and proposed strengthening the Council on Higher Education.

Funding for the Kentucky Horse Park, financing of the Lexington Civic Center and the development of Boonesborough State Park were among other accomplishments of the Ford administration.

A back injury Mr. Ford received in June 1972 might have saved him from an early death.

He was at a boat regatta in Owensboro when he grabbed two people boarding a docked boat, apparently preventing them from falling into the Ohio River. The action left him with back problems.

An abdominal aortic aneurysm, unrelated to the accident, was discovered after he sought treatment for his back. Dr. Michael DeBakey, a renowned heart and vascular surgeon, removed the aneurysm at a Houston hospital.

Change of pace

Mr. Ford left the governor's chair a year early in 1974 to run for the Senate. In that race, he upset Republican incumbent Marlow Cook.

Julian Carroll, who was lieutenant governor under Mr. Ford and succeeded him as governor, said he had been a backer of Bert Combs for governor, not Mr. Ford.

"Wendell and I got along fairly well until he was elected governor," Carroll said. "Things got cool between us for a while, but that was due more to our staffs. I was never a thorn in his side, and I had no frays with the governor."

Carroll, who is now a state senator, said Ford initially wanted him to run for the U.S. Senate against Cook.

"We spent about six months talking about it at the home of Frankfort businessman Jim Gray, who became the secretary of my cabinet," Carroll said.

Eventually, political strategist Bill Cox persuaded Carroll to call Bob Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, about the U.S. Senate race, Carroll said.

"I called Strauss and told him that if I ran, only the Carroll people would be excited about me. But if Wendell Ford ran, every one would be for him — his people and my people — because the Carroll people knew I would be governor."

Carroll said Strauss called Mr. Ford and persuaded him to run for the U.S. Senate.

"I always deeply admired Wendell's political abilities," said Carroll.

Despite winning election to the U.S. Senate, Mr. Ford never really left the governor's chair. He took the chair he used in his Frankfort office to Washington. He also found the desk used by the late Alben W. Barkley, who served as Senate majority leader and later as vice president, and paid a Senate committee $350 for it. The desk that Mr. Ford used in the Senate chamber was the former desk of 19th century statesman Henry Clay of Kentucky.

He found the U.S. Senate was much slower than life in the Kentucky governor's mansion.

"As governor, you could pick up the phone, make a couple of calls and get something accomplished," he said. "Up here, it's a different ballgame."

His favorite saying as a senator was: "There are no victories in Washington, only varying degrees of defeat."

Mr. Ford also was chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee from 1976 to 1982.

Kentucky issues

Mr. Ford thought about running for governor again in 1983 and 1991, but he decided against it both times.

In 1991, he said he preferred to run for Democratic Senate whip. In 1983, he would have faced sitting Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins, a strong ally of Mr. Ford's, in the primary.

A federal grand jury investigation of state government corruption also was a factor in his decision.

Mr. Ford's name had arisen in connection with an alleged insurance fee-splitting scheme on state insurance contracts while he was governor.

In 1981, federal prosecutors in Lexington recommended that Mr. Ford be indicted on charges that he participated in a conspiracy to share commissions with members of the state Democratic Party and their families. Justice Department officials in Washington said the case was too old.

Mr. Ford refused to say whether he invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination before the grand jury.

Later in the 1980s, there was a Senate Ethics Committee inquiry into Mr. Ford's association with E.M. Ford & Co. insurance agency in Owensboro. Mr. Ford had been a partner in E.M. Ford & Co. and Southern Financial Insurance in Owensboro.

Then-Rep. Carroll Hubbard, D-1st District, first raised the issue in questioning E.M. Ford & Co.'s dealings with the financially troubled Big Rivers Electric Corp. E.M. Ford handled the property and liability coverage for Big Rivers, which had benefitted from a federal bailout.

Mr. Ford maintained that he had no involvement in both insurance firms' operations and said that he had sold his interest in them to his son, Steven Ford, and brother, Reyburn Ford. The Ethics Committee agreed that Mr. Ford's ties had violated no Senate ethics rules, but welcomed his decision to sever his relationship with the two companies.

His popularity was not diminished.

In his 1986 U.S. Senate race, Mr. Ford won all 120 counties and captured nearly three-fourths of the vote.

Of his career in the Senate, Mr. Ford said, "I wasn't interested in national issues. I was interested in Kentucky issues."

After Mr. Ford's retirement, he enjoyed teaching politics to youth at the Owensboro Museum of Science and History. It housed a replica of his Senate office in the Wendell H. Ford Government Education Center.

The Western Kentucky Parkway was renamed in his honor during the administration of Gov. Paul Patton.

Mr. Ford is survived by his wife, Jean. They had been married 71 years. They have two children, son, Steven, and daughter, Shirley Dexter.

To give a quick sense of what I'd like to discuss, for once you're ready — when we launch his Facebook page tomorrow, we'll want to include a set of (largely professional) life "milestones" in his timeline.

If possible, we'd love photos to accompany each ones. Obviously Lienemann and co can help with any photos taken over the course of the Administration, but before that, it gets a bit trickier. Wanted to pick your brain on the best sources for photos for other, pre-White House life events. List below of the ones we'd like to include.

Let me know when you're free to talk, and thanks!

The schedulers are holding time on the VP's schedule next Tuesday, 4/12, for him to sign his taxes. (Dr. B usually is in the office on Wednesdays, so I assume we will get her Hancock that day.)

Please speak up if you do not think we can have the docs in hand by next Tuesday.

Thanks Eric! I'm attaching the written Q&A they've requested from Hunter. We can figure out how to best get these answered - and we'll also need a time for a photo (maybe at NavObs?)

Appreciate your help,

Hey - quick random question. What's the best way to get in touch with Hunter? VP agreed to do this Q&A for Popular Mechanics - ideally, we'd need responses from Hunter and a time that he and VP can do a photo for magazine cover.

Thanks!

Hi Meghan,

Our questions for the Vice President and Hunter are attached. I'm so sorry I couldn't get them to you first thing this morning. My editor-in-chief and I spent all day working on them, making sure we got them absolutely right. We just consider this such a huge honor and responsibility. We don't take it lightly. We'd love for the two of them to be as detailed in their responses as possible. And if these questions spark any other stories or opinions about fatherhood they'd like to share, they should absolutely feel free to share those, too-any and all digressions are welcome. I need their responses by Friday, April 1 at the absolute latest. Let me know if you have any questions or need anything else from this end. And please, please express to both of them our sincerest gratitude.

Best,

Sean

QUESTION FOR HUNTER BIDEN
POPULAR MECHANICS JUNE 2016 COVER STORY

- What was it like growing up with a father who was a successful public figure?
- Were you a good kid?
- What makes your father angry? What makes him laugh? Is the same true of you?
- What's the best thing your father ever taught you?
- Are you mechanical? Did you learn any practical things from your father about working around the house?
- What did your father teach you about women?
- You were only two years old when your mother and sister passed away. Now that you're a father yourself, what are your thoughts about how your father managed to be so strong during that time?
- Your father has shown admirable strength and vulnerability in public while coping with the loss of your brother. Could you offer some reflections on how he has been able to do that?
- Did your father give you any specific advice before the birth of your first child? Was he there at the hospital? What was his reaction the first time he held his grandchild? What was that experience like for you?
- How has fatherhood in America changed from your father's generation to yours?
- What's it like being the father of three daughters? We hear the preteen years can be challenging.
- Are you a helicopter parent?
- What's the most important thing you've taught your daughters?
- Does having kids give you more perspective on what it was like for your parents raising you?
- What's your favorite thing to do with your dad?
- If you have any other thoughts or feelings about fatherhood, please share. Our readers would love to hear them.

Looping Ginna to get a better sense of timing. I fear the Leno segment might be wrapped by that time, but she'd have more information.

Great - thanks, Meghan. Hunter had asked me to reach out to you about this so I am glad Alex connected us.

I'll show Hunter the questions to get him thinking about them. Let us know what you are thinking as far as timing. On the photo shoot, not sure if David is doing it or the magazine is sending someone but DE could be an option too - Hunter should be up there a bunch in the coming weeks.

Eric,

Unfortunately, I can't edit the draft 278 that you sent to me to include Dr. Biden's financial info. Can you send the correct version so I can make the appropriate edits, or correct the copy you sent to me? Dr. Biden's statements are attached here. The password to open them will follow shortly.

To ensure we're on the same sheet of music, the following info / confirmations are needed for the version you sent to me:

FYI, OGE needs to see this document today for a preliminary review, which we need to do so the VP can sign it tomorrow.

Thanks for your help on this.

I wanted to check - have you been able to verify the life insurance info? We'd like to get a draft of this report over to OGE today, if possible.

Just checking in to see if you have a timeline as to when you need a completed 278 based on when the VP will be signing.

Any luck getting some of Jill's information?

I am trying to confirm some of the life insurance information on my end.
