Consent/Right to Access

Consent for Third-Party Requester

If you are a third-party requester seeking records on behalf of another individual or business entity, and the requested documents are protected under the Privacy Act (5 USC 552a) or Internal Revenue Code (IRC) 6103, you must provide an official document showing proof of proper authorization.

- See About Form 8821, Tax Information Authorization, for requests for IRC 6103 protected records.
- See IRM 10.5.6.6.1, Access to Records, for authorization requirements for Privacy Act protected documents (i.e. personnel records)

Right to Access for Individuals and Businesses

If you are requesting your own records, or the records of a business entity for which you have authority to receive information protected under IRC 6103, you must attach appropriate documentation to establish your right to access these records. If you don't include such documentation your request for Privacy Act and/or IRC 6103 protected records may be denied in full. Appropriate documentation could include the following:

Individual Requesters:

- A non-expired document containing both your signature and address as they appear on the request and one other official identification document bearing your signature (such as a photocopy of a driver's license).
- A notarized statement swearing to or affirming your identity.
- A sworn statement as to identity, under penalty of perjury, is acceptable in lieu of a notarized statement. The sworn statement must meet the requirements of 28 USC 1746.

Non-Individual Entities:

- See IRM 11.3.2.4, Persons Who May Have Access to Returns and Return Information Pursuant to IRC 6103(e), for who may request protected tax information of entities such as partnerships, corporations, estates, etc., and what documentation must be provided.

Fee Information

FOIA requesters may be required to pay fees to cover some or all of the costs of processing their requests. If a fee is incurred more than the maximum fees you are willing to pay, you will be notified in advance if the charges will exceed the specified amount, and may withdraw or modify your request.

Expedite Information

A request for expedited processing can be granted if the requester shows a "compelling need" for an expedited response. The requester must also certify that the statement of compelling need is true and correct to the best of his or her knowledge and belief. A "compelling need" warranting faster FOIA processing exists in three categories of circumstances.

- That the failure to obtain the records within an expedited deadline could reasonably be expected to pose an imminent threat to an individual's life or physical safety.
- A request by someone "primarily engaged in disseminating information" and "a matter of current exigency to the American public."
- The loss of substantial due process of rights.
- See 26 CFR 601.702 for information on compelling need and qualifications for expedite processing.
- See 28 U.S.C. 1746 for example language of the certified statement requirements.
